OUR NEW YORK LETTER

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT OF THE OREGONIAN]

NEW YORK, May 11, 1867.

ANNIVERSARY MONTH.

For time immemorial May has been the Anniversary month of almost all the religious, the benevolent, the eleemosynary, the moral reform and the social institutions of the country

Philosophers and humanitarians of all sorts and both sexes, professors and orators of all denominations, are daily arriving in this city to attend these anniversaries.

The amusement season is drawing rapidly to a close, the fashion and ton of the town are donning summer costume, packing their trunks for trips to Saratoga, Long Branch, Newport, the White Mountains and all the other various springs, spas, sea sides and summer resorts, in which they pass the time in revelry and fun until the dog days are over.

Of the anniversaries we had this week, there are the American Tract Society, American Seamen's Friend Society, American Bible Society National Temperance Society, American Sunday School Union, American Congregational Union, American Anti Slavery Society, American Board of Foreign Mission and the Home Missionary Society, the Lyceum Rights Association and the Radical Peace Society and a half a score of lesser lights in the evangelical lights of the world

We subjoin a portion of the resolutions adopted at some of these anniversaries

By the American Anti Slavery Society

1 Resolved, That we devoutly thank God that we meet at last in a nation thoroughly in earnest in its purpose to found its institutions on the corner stone of absolute justice and already far advanced in the accomplishment of its purpose

4 Resolved That in our judgment the guarantees of the negro's freedom and equality should be provisions in the Federal constitution, forbidding any State to debar him from civil and political rights; and his substantial security is his actual possession and use of all these rights and under the protection of the police power of the United States as the recognition by the North of the same rule of impartial freedom in

6 Resolved That the nation owes it to self respect, to justice to future security and to the present safety of the colored race redeemed by so much blood and treasure to impeach and remove the traitor of the White House at once—(applause)—and every hour Congress delays to do this insults the nation disgraces its name jeopards its future, delays justice and makes more and more innocent blood cry to God against us

Resolved That we urge on all friends of freedom to keep vigilant and continue to watch in the Supreme Court and in the present effort of rebels to make use of it in order to block the wheel of government

9 Resolved That the next Presidential election will be the most momentous one ever made on this continent, and it behooves us all to see that we do not drift into it unprepared for nullifying hands through heedless worship and blind party spirit (applause) since we must put through loyal representatives and decided purpose at the helm or we lose half the fruits of this terrible conflict

11 Resolved That if Governor Eyre goes unwhipped of justice it will be another proof that the same proslavery spirit rules England to day which a few years ago, cowered the Confederate pirates with British protection and only from lack of courage forbore to put its flag side by side with that of the rebellion—(applause)—and we shall expect no further recognition of that nation until its malignant aristocracy is crushed or its sons and heirs, in the uprising up of a sovereign people (Applause)

By the American Equal Rights Association

Resolved That the present claim for manhood suffrage, sugar coated with the words equal rights and universal &c is and all feel it is designed to mislead the friends of freedom both North and South This is only another form of despotism pure and simple it leaves its spirit essentially such as we have had unchanged

Resolved That the ballot makes the woman and the man equal in all respects that it is the dignity right and privilege of every human being to have a fair day s wages for a fair day s work In the wife it means the control of her own property and earnings In the mother it means the equal guardianship of her children and in all it means equality and perfect equal opportunities skilled labor and intellectual development

Resolved That it is the duty of the coming Constitutional Convention to so amend the second Article of the Constitution as to make the right of suffrage to women and Black men alike, not worth $250 and thus establish a republican form of government in the State of New York

Resolved That the recent action of Kansas and Wisconsin in submitting to a vote of the people a proposition to amend their State constitutions so as to secure suffrage to all citizens, without regard to race or sex, was bold but in the first step toward the practical realization of our theory of government—equal rights to all

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

Editors and politicians throughout the country are taking old time by the forelock, in presenting their favorite candidates for President and Vice President in 1868 So early in the race, 'tis hard to guess whose 'gray mare will prove the better horse, but the following names already appear up in the political slate

The Columbus, (Ohio,) Journal nominates this ticket

For President—Hon Salmon P Chase, of Ohio
For Vice President—Hon John Minor Botts, of Virginia

The Indianapolis, (Indiana,) Journal hoists this banner

For President—Hon Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana
For Vice President—Major General Benjamin F Butler, of Massachusetts

The New York Commercial (Thurlow Weed, editor) favors this ticket

For President—General Ulysses S Grant, of Illinois
For Vice President—Admiral D G Farragut, of Virginia

The New York Herald, whose keen but oroside sighted editor, claims to have been the first journalist that both suggested and predicted the nominations of Franklin Pierce and General Taylor, thinks this ticket will win

For Vice President—General Robert E Lee, of Virginia.

Tennessee, Illinois and some of the western papers propose the names

For President—Major General George H Thomas of Tennessee
For Vice President—General John A Logan, of Illinois

A down East (Maine) paper very enthusiastically proposes

For President—Wendell Phillips, of Massachusetts
For Vice President—Anna E Dickinson of Pennsylvania

The motto on this banner—the in hoc signo vinces—being, "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong"

The latest champions entered into the lists, who like the mailed knight that rode the black charger in the grand tournament of Ivanhoe, would break a lance in the campaign of 1868, are

For President—Jack Hamilton, of Texas
For Vice President—Fred Douglass, of New York

MARK TWAIN

Among the fresh arrivals of the week, in the amusement line are Mark Twain, of California, and Maguire & Risley's Imperial Troupe of wonderful Japanese tumblers and trickstars. Mark Twain, sometimes known as "The Wild Humorist of the Pacific," whose funny writings have shook the laughter loving sides of half a continent—whose book, "The Jumping Frog," just issued from the New York press, is introducing the author into new fields, new harvests, and new triumph—and on whose shoulders must rest the profound mantle of Artemus Ward—appeared before a New York public at Cooper Institute, on Monday evening last In his "Experience in the Sandwich Islands," he compressed into a single lecture an immense amount of valuable matter descriptive of Kanackadom not to be found elsewhere, while his quaint similes, ludicrous expressions, and intensely funny jokes, he lavished upon a fashionable and appreciative audience in quantity sufficient for a whole course of lectures Mark sails for the Holy Lands with General Sherman's party June 1st, and this lecture was the occasion of a benefit gotten up by his California admirers in this city, for the parting "staff and scrip"

EXCURSION TO THE HOLY LAND

This proposed excursion to countries bordering upon the Mediterranean, has been organized for a trans Atlantic pleasure party during the ensuing summer.

A first class steamer has been chartered, and as the number of excursionists is limited to two-thirds the capacity of the vessel, it is expected the trip will be made with more than ordinary comfort. The route is to be from New York to the Azores, and Gibraltar, thence by the coast of Spain and France to Marseilles, where a stay will be made of sufficient time to admit of the party visiting the Exposition at Paris, and the manufactories of Lyons; thence to Genoa Leghorn and Sicily, giving them time to visit Milan and Lake Como, Venice and its Bridge of Sighs, the galleries of Florence, the leaning Tower of Pisa, Herculaneum, Pompeii and Vesuvius; thence passing the insurrectionary isle of Crete, and sailing the same waters where St Paul nearly two thousand years before bent his oars, visiting Constantinople, Sebastapol, Balaklava and the battle fields of the Crimea, after which Palestine and Egypt will come in for a large share of the season, thence homeward by Valentia and Madeira, reaching New York again about the last of October

This beats all those little excursion parties you Oregonians get up to Tillamook, Yakima, or Honolulu. Among the members of this party will be Major General Sherman and daughter, Rev Edward Beecher, Rev E. H Gray, Chaplain of the Senate, Capt Story of the Board of Undowriters, Capt. Duncan, and many others of note Major General Hooker, who, by reason of continued ill health has been granted one year's leave of absence from all duty, may with his family accompany the party. The price of tickets for each passenger is fixed at $1,250, and it is estimated that living and excursion expenses incidental to the trip at various stopping places will not require more than $5 per day additional That the programme may be fully carried out, it is stipulated that the route can be changed, or the time extended only by unanimous consent of all passengers

BEECHER AND HIS STORY

Rev Henry Ward Beecher and family expected to have been of the party, but the new role in which the eminent divine has recently appeared will preclude his going away for so long a time this summer Beecher was always a capital hand at telling a story, indeed it has been said that his brain is crammed as full of good stories as was that of the lamented Lincoln full of practical jokes or a kernal full of meat Robert Bonner the proprietor of the New York Ledger, a man of original ideas, who owns and drives the fastest horses in America, and who probably more than any other man, unless it be that prince of showman, P T Barnum, or Plantation Bitters S T.-1860 X Drake, knows the value and the power of printer's ink, conceived the idea of obtaining from the pen of Rev Henry Ward Beecher an original story, and making the great pulpit orator a card for his Ledger The very announcement of the name of Beecher as writing a novel for Bonner's paper, it is believed, will give a circulation of over 800,000 copies

The price which is paid for the story is not less than ten thousand dollars—some say twenty thousand—and Mr Bonner will spend as much more in advertising The increased sales at one newspaper house in this city, with the great installment, was over a thousand copies and a single dealer in Boston ordered eight thousand extra copies Bonner's Ledger office is the spot where the happy mixture of milk and honey flows

THE PARIS EXPOSITION

While the European Peace Congress, composed of a single representative from nine of the leading Powers of Europe, each Plenipotentiary bearing a name and title as long as that of the Virginia child who was christened "Andrew Jackson Stonewall Gordon Semmes—Buchanan—Raise-the-Flag and Fire the cannon Dobbins," are assembled in Downing street, London, in the same room where the Schleswig-Holstein Conference of 1864 met, while Napoleon is making still more active preparations for war and Bismarck is reported as saying that the political sky is more ominous of a fight than ever there are many interesting items reaching us from the Paris Exposition, of the progress of civilization and advancement of art among nations, which appears in that collection and display the most wonderful the world has ever shown In vastness of proportions and wonderful variety of the earth s productions, the Show is pronounced a success—three times larger than the London Exhibition of 1862

The United States Department is by no means satisfactory, and much fault is found with the American Commissioner in Paris In steam engines locomotives reapers and mowers, platform scales pianos, sewing machines, tobacco and lead pencils we have a very full and flattering exhibition, but upon the whole, the contrast with other nations does not place our department up to the expectations of foreigners or friends

The African contributions are unique and magnificent The Viceroy of Egypt, probably the richest individual in the world, has expended over a million and a half of dollars, in preparing and decorating his section and Egypt is considered the most gorgeous portion of the Exposition

In the food department the United States compares favorably with other nations There are every variety of wheat, corn, rye, sorghum, sugar, syrup, flour, meal, and fruit from the great west, wines from California and Ohio, farina and corn starch from New York such as no other country produces samples of beet sugar from Illinois which compares favorably with the French manufacture, and ale from Philadelphia and New York, competing with that of England and Germany

In the display and arrangement of seeds, Russia is reported as being our superior, hers being put up more systematically and labeled in many languages

In the department of minerals, the contribution of Prof J P Whitney from the Pacific coast, is very attractive and the subject of great praise among amateurs

The great exposition had not been open a month before intelligence of the awards of examining committees reached us It will be gratifying to Americans to learn that the first prize for locomotives has been awarded, after a sharp competition with French, English, Austrian and Russian machines, to that splendid passenger engine and tender, sent from Paterson, New Jersey The proprietors of this locomotive, appropriately named "America," deserve great credit for spirit and enterprise in furnishing at a cost of over $35,000 this specimen of American mechanism For though the result has proven that our engineers and workmen can make a superior machine, still with present prices of labor and iron, they cannot compete in price with the locomotive builders in France and England It is interesting to note especial differences between American and European locomotives, ours are as symmetrical, elegant and seemingly light, and have a protection for engineer and fireman as the pilot houses upon our steamers are to the man at the wheel, over there, the engine drivers are allowed no cover, but must keep their positions all day beneath a hot summer sun, or take full in their face the wintry storm An Englishman objected to the fine covering over our engineers, on the ground that when allowed to sit under a shed, they would be more likely to fall asleep than if they were obliged to face the wind and storm An Austrian objected to the American locomotive, because there was so much polished steel and shining brass or silver plate to be kept in order

Among the curious things which attest the skill of French artificers in tempering and working metals, visitors are shown a bar of iron about as long and as thick as the pole of a carriage, tied into a knot as though were a mere ribbon, without a vestige of crack or flaw, and the assurance is further given that this iron bar was tied when cold.

FRIDAY MORNING JUNE 14, 1867

Facts for the People of Portland.

We continue from our article of yesterday our examination of city affairs The taxation levied in 1864 and 1865 for general purposes, amounted to nineteen mills and paid the in debtedness of $19,088 53 accumulated prior to April 16th 1864 and the expense of carrying on the city government from the last named date to the 31st of December, 1866,—a period of two years and eight and a half months But the old indebtedness alone amounted to over five mills of this tax Thus it will be seen that the average taxation, aside from the tax necessary to pay the debt contracted before Mayor Failing's first term, has been a fraction less than one half of one per centum for general purposes

Let it be remembered that under the old Council, partly on account of defects in the city charter as it then was scarcely any permanent improvements were made No one who lived in Portland a few years ago, can fail to recognize the truth of this statement, when he calls to mind the numerous instances he then witnessed, of wagons and drays mired down in the principal business streets of the city, and the difficulty he had in reading to and from his place of business, without the benefits of grade or sidewalk. It is true the street improvements, such as grading and paving, have been made by general taxation, but in order to have them made at all, it was necessary to have surveying done, monuments established, and sewers constructed with numerous other items of expense to the city, which do not belong to the ordinary expenses of carrying on the government, and which, when once done, do not have to be done again They are the extra expenses incident to the necessary improvement of a young and growing city like Portland.

By reference to the annual message of Mayor Failing, June 28th, 1866, it appears that there was paid out of the general fund during the fiscal year ending December 31, 1865, for the construction of sewers alone, $4,857 05 Wherever the streets were improved the old wooden lamp posts were removed and replaced by substantial iron posts—besides additional posts put up, also of iron The same message of the Mayor shows an appropriation of $1,000 for this one item of lamp posts during the year ending December 1865, and it may be safely assumed that this is not more than one-half the amount so expended since April 15th, 1864. There were also during the same year other extra appropriations from the general fund, for instance, for improving the city's real property, plaza, etc., and the streets adjoining, and setting monuments, involving an aggregate expense of $4,500 00, and this for only one year of the time since the government passed out of Democratic hands. Here then, we have $9,157 05 taken from the general fund in one year for improvements of a permanent character for the benefit of the whole city. And these improvements were actually demanded, and the people of the city, recognizing the absolute necessity for them, urged them time and again, by petitions and in every other practicable manner, upon the Council, until they could not be refused or deferred without a plain and palpable disregard of the wants of the wants of the city and contempt for the expressed wishes of citizens.

During the whole time for which such improvements have been going on since the 16th of April, 1864, more than double this amount, or $18,314 10, have been thus appropriated, as the records show. During this time the sum of $1,200 was also paid for South Market Square. Thus we find that during the period of "burdensome taxation," so much bewailed by the Democratic "retrenchers," the general fund of the city has paid, outside the ordinary expenses of municipal government, upon accounts unavoidable at the time, but not again to burden the citizens, $18,314 10 for public improvements, $1,200 for South Market Square, and $19,088 53 for Democratic debts,—in the aggregate $38,602 63 This amount is equal to nearly ten and a half mills out of nineteen mills levied—leaving a balance of about eight and a half mills for the current expenses of the city for two years and eight and a half months Now by a simple computation on the data above given we arrive at the amount of taxation for the ordinary expenses of the city from April 15th, 1864, to the close of the fiscal year ending December 31st, 1867,—an average of about three and one fourth mills per annum

This brings the investigation down to the commencement of the present year, at which time we enter upon the records of Democratic rule, of which, having examined it pretty closely, we shall present an outline to-morrow morning.

Glass Houses, Etc.

The Herald with its usual candor speaks of the nomination of Mr Lownsdale for Mayor as "procured through party management," when it knows that he was the unanimous choice of his party for the position and that he was nominated by a full and fair vote and without a competitor. This same habit of calumniation instigated the absurd innuendoes and false insinuations against that gentleman No man has been more industrious or economical in the management of the city affairs than Councilman Lownsdale No man has a name more justly earned, or more thoroughly established than he. And no man can so ill afford to have a comparison of official conduct in city affairs instituted, as his competitor for the Mayoralty. And if private character is to be impeached, according to the Herald's habit, the supporters of Mr. Lownsdale's competitor would do well to heed the advice which the adage gives to dwellers in glass houses. Mr Lownsdale is known in this community by a long residence and extensive acquaintance, and is every way above reproach. Contrary to the insinuations of the Herald, he has advocated no interest adverse to that of the city. In the matter of street improvement alone he has spent months of his time without any compensation, and his services while in the Council have been of incalculable value to the city. No particular can be specified where he has neglected the interests of the city or worked with a view to his own aggrandizement, politically or otherwise,—a thing which cannot be said for certain men who are making themselves somewhat prominent at this time.

Democratic Policy.

The two reform Union men voted for a Democratic printer on grounds of public policy —Herald

These "grounds of public policy" will be rendered intelligible by the following statement: Last year the printing ordered by the Council cost the city $375. The present year an offer was made to do it for half that sum, which offer was declined by the "reform" Council An arrangement was then made by the "retrenchers" whereby the city printing for the current year cannot cost less than three or four times what was paid last year for the same service This proceeding is one which is said to have been demanded by "public policy" We move to amend by substituting the word "Democratic" for the word "public" The statement would then read The two reform Union men (that is to say the two Democratic converts) voted for a Democratic printer on grounds of Democratic policy.

Until within a week, the Herald has invariably called its political opponents "Radicals" or "Republicans," and has sneered at them for claiming to be a Union party. But since it got to coquetting with Feohheimer & Co, it speaks of the "Union party," in the most respectful manner, and sneers at those who call themselves Republicans It is not easy to please some people

The Democratic Nominations

The Herald complains that the opponents of its party have 'presented a ticket of their own selecting of an exclusive party character for the city offices' And pray what have the Herald and its friends done? They have presented another ticket of an exclusive party character. There is not a candidate on their ticket who voted for the nominees of the Union party last June Their ticket is a party ticket It is a Democratic ticket There is only one person whose name appears on their ticket who is not a violent Democratic partisan The rest are strict party men, and are perpetually engaged in the wrangle of party politics This is the ticket which is recommended to citizens as being selected without regard to politics, and composed of men who are "pledged to administer the city government without party bias" And the Democratic managers who have presented this straight Democratic ticket tell us that they disapprove of introducing party politics into our city government!" Isn't that excessively cool? In fact, isn't it frigid? They nominate a straight party ticket, and tell us there is nothing of a partisan character about it! They condemn others for nominating a party ticket, yet do the very same thing themselves They would not have party politics mentioned in connection with city affairs yet they take good care to present none but party men for office They deprecate an issue between the two parties in the city but make the very issue which they profess to be so anxious to avoid This is a very fair specimen of Democratic strategy, but like the common practices of that party, it is rather too full of apparent inconsistencies to deceive anybody

This Democratic ticket is also recommended because it is claimed that those whose names appear upon it are in favor of "retrenchment and reform" What expenses do they mean to retrench, and what evils do they propose to reform? They do not tell us The simply use this phrase in a general way without specifying anything. It sounds well before an election, but after the election it will become obsolete It has been used in a most energetic manner for the last six months with special reference to the effect it was expected to have in the election which is now at hand These "retrenchers" are taking great credit to themselves for reducing taxes at a time when no public improvements are going on, and after the work which has contributed to produce increased taxation is finished and old Democratic debts paid up. They claim to be the only persons in favor of light taxes, do they suppose that other citizens who pay their full share of the taxes want the public money squandered? There is not a tax-payer in the city who does not desire the reduction of the taxes to the lowest rate which will yield a revenue adequate for the expenses of the city government, but men of foresight do not want the taxes reduced below this point, as they wish the city to be kept out of debt and desire to avoid a repetition of the experience of Democratic times when an indebtedness was incurred which has required a largely increased rate of taxation during the last two years to pay.

If this ticket is a "reform ticket," how happens it that it is composed exclusively of Democrats? If there has been that extravagance or expenditure which these "reformers" talk of, how happens it that none but Democrats have found it out? How happens it again, that in presenting a "reform" ticket none but Democrats could be found to go on it? These circumstances show that all this outcry is sham. It is a Democratic movement, very poorly disguised, or rather, not disguised at all. It is like the great bird which thrusts its head into a bush and thinks itself concealed, while its huge, disgusting body is exposed naked to the view. No one, after studying the figures which we present in another place can be misled by this specious talk about "retrenchment and reform"

A "Retrencher" Record.

Holmes asdires to the Mayoralty in order that he may have an opportunity to carry out his peculiar ideas of "retrenchment" What is his record? For several years he refused to pay his taxes, so strongly did he favor "economical reform" He always opposed street improvements, doubtless also through considerations of "economy." Every measure looking to permanent improvements in the city has encountered his opposition His ideas of "economy" are to pay no taxes as long as he can help it; to let the streets remain in a filthy and almost impassable condition (as they were two or three years ago,) and to rent his tumble down shanties throughout the city, whereof he has a great number, to Chinese and ——. This is his record in favor of "reform"

Wanting to Trade.

The supporters of the Democratic no party ticket are known to be extremely anxious to trade Their aim is to secure votes for Holmes by using their other candidates as trading stock This is particularly the case in the Third Ward, where they have no idea of electing Councilmen of their own Of course these propositions will be rejected, for, if there is a Democrat in nomination whom a Republican should vote for, that Democrat is not Holmes

Among the items of appropriation from the general fund of the city, as shown in the Auditor's report accompanying the Mayor's message in June, 1866, was the following "For litigation, $300" This is supposed to be a portion of the sum the city expended in various actions at law to collect Holmes's taxes.

LAYING IN ON THE THICK —The Toledo Blade, (of which Petroleum V Nasby, alias Locke, is one of the editors,) illustrates one of the difficulties encountered by the Chivalry as follows

A rebel lawyer in Richmond, Virginia, in an attempt to win the suffrage of the colored voters of that vicinity, affectionately assured them, in a public speech, that "he had a colored mammy when he was a child, and that he loved the colored people, as they must know." But he didn't tell them, nor was it necessary for the colored people to understand it, that, after a bad run of luck at faro, that very "mammy," so beloved, was sold by him to furnish the sinews of war for another buck at the tiger They are laying it on too thick The backs of the audience addressed by the Richmond lawyer have not yet had time to heal, and every one of them has either been upon the auction-block or seen his relatives there

PARK.—All great cities have, or ought to have a park, where the dust-covered the noise-deafened and street-weary people can go and enjoy a little of God's nature among the trees, the grass, the flowers and the birds. Portland may not be so big as some of her sister cities; but she is going to have a park. Webber & Co. are engaged in clearing the underbrush from a beautiful grove, about seven blocks distance from the ferry landing in East Portland, and fitting it up with a platform for assemblies, swings and other appliances for sports, tables for pic nic lunches, walks for promenade, conveniences for target shooting, etc., etc. It is located on the farm of Mr. Jas. Stephens, on the south side of the slough, and about half way from the river to the asylum. Row boats can reach it by the slough. It is laid out perfectly fitted place for pic nics, celebrations or anything of that kind within a radius of many miles of the city. The grounds are open, free to all visitors, and can be obtained on easy terms for any suitable public use. It will, in time, become a favorite place of resort.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.—Just at present we have in this city a number of visitors of note, from San Francisco. Col. Williamson arrived here by steamer on a visit connected with the expenditure of the appropriation by Congress for the improvement of the Willamette river. Mr. Denman of the Denman Public School in San Francisco, a distinguished educator of that city, arrived with his family yesterday. He is traveling through this country for the purpose of seeing it. He will make a trip up the Columbia and then overland to Olympia, and thence by steamer to Victoria. Mr. D., with a gentleman of this city, walked up to the summit of Robinson's Hill, and, by its aid, to get a view of the magnificent scenery from that point. He has traveled all through Europe and seen its most notable scenery and sights, he says, but upon a view with such extent, beauty and grandeur as that presented to the vision from Robinson's Hill, Mr. De ... is delighted with our whole State.

A MISAPPRECIATION ON PORTLAND.—Mr. Loland, who recently left this city, wrote to his Journal, on the 28th ult., from which we make the following extracts:

"... four years, the mercantile metropolis ... once more is my temporary lodging. Dismissing ... in the mountains, this city has made rapid strides in improvements of a permanent character. This fact ... apparent to me on first entering the town; and ... rious flagged streets and magnificent brick and stone ... while its area has been largely extended north, south, east and west and a new town of no mean ... built upon the east side of the river, and christened ... Portland. * * * The Fire Department of this city has the credit of being as efficient as any on the coast, and we think this is not given without merit, ... the town would never have escaped the devouring ..."

A TRUE MOTHER.—A gentleman who came down from ... Saturday, relates the following circumstance ... at that city, and which has something of the ... in it: A man and woman recently arrived ... having with them a young child which they were ... to sell. While at a hotel in the city should take and ... This was declined. The seeming mother requested the lady to hold the child while she could go to the ... and procure some clothing for it. She soon returned ... finding and ran away, paying no heed to the ... of the lady holding the child, and has not since been ... heard from, though constant search has been made. It is not known where the man and woman came ... or what direction they took upon leaving.

HOME WORK.—A Miss M. J. Wicks from Connecticut, ... on the steamer Ajax and put up at the Western, ... during there her affianced—a gentleman named Rhodes, ... City. Within ten minutes from the time of ... the twain were on the way to the parsons, in ten ... more were made one flesh, and within ten more ... were back at the hotel—man and wife. The ... Benedict went immediately to the register and ... the name, Miss M. J. Wicks to "Mrs. M. J. ..." All this happened in thirty minutes, which ... called rather quick work.

A FAT ONE AND A BIG ONE.—When passing the market ... Mr. A. M. Johnson, yesterday, we were called in to ... a remarkably fat and large mutton carcass which ... had slaughtered in the morning. It weighed ... two hundred and thirty-three pounds, and ... completely with fat outside and inside, with the ... tallow we ever saw. The animal was ... Johnson himself, and exhibited an artistic ... seldom found among the butchers of this ... Johnson evidently understands his business.

... At the rehearsal last evening, Mr. J. ..., the conductor of the Portland Philharmonic ..., was made the recipient of a beautiful gold mounted ... a testimonial to his capabilities and efficiency ... chief director of the Society and his worth as a ... The presentation was made by Capt. S. J. McCorkle ... of the Society, and was made the occasion ... many happy remarks and a good time generally ... to Mr. W. was well deserved.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT—DEADY, Justice.—Wash ..., from Utah.—Baldwin et. al vs. Strong, Administrator, ... to answer sustained and defendant had leave to ... added answer.

... vs. Strong, Administrator; ... was transacted yesterday.

... FIRES.—One readers may have seen in the ... that the Rubber Clothing Co., of San Francisco, ... Agent, advertised 1,000 dozen rubber neck-ties. Well, Herman Bros. have bought the whole lot—enough to tie up in neat style, nearly half the male necks in the city. Go to Herman Bros. for your neck-ties.

... CONCERT TO-NIGHT.—The concert by the ... Philharmonic Society, for the benefit of the poor ... takes place at Odd Fellows Hall to-night. Every ... should remember it. If any are unable to go they ... at least buy tickets, and the dollars will be worthily ...

... ARRIVALS.—Arrived per steamer Senator ... Oregon City, Thursday, June 13th, 5,212 qr sk ... 7 bales woolen goods, 14 boxes produce, 7 hhf bbls ... 1 bale furs, 21 boxes eggs, 7 gunnies ... 98 bags wheat, 1 sk middlings, 10 cases lard.

BOOKS AT AUCTION.—A. Roman & Co. have been selling ... every evening this week, at auction, and yet they have a good many valuable books left. The closing sale will take place on Saturday evening, when everything is expected to go.

FREIGHT BY THE AJAX.—The steamship Ajax brought up about six hundred and fifty tons of general merchandise for Portland. On her return, she will be freighted mostly with flour, and will take every pound she can carry.

RECORDER'S COURT.—Yesterday morning the defendant in the case of the City vs. Sieman, abandoned his motion for a new trial. He was fined $20 and costs, on the charge of ... filing filth within the city limits.

STEAMER FOR THE UPPER WILLAMETTE.—Upon the arrival of the Spectator at Oregon City, this morning, the ... will be dispatched for the various landings of the Upper Willamette.

PAPERS.—We are indebted to McCormick for copies of ... Magazine, Harpers' and Leslie's Illustrated ... Gazettes, and divers periodicals received by the ... steamer.

THIRD WARD.—The Democracy of the Third Ward proposes to meet in mass convention, this evening, to nominate candidates for Councilmen. It will be love's labor lost.

Extracting teeth by Dr. Richardson's apparatus, with Ether or Rhigolene Spray, is local in its application, the tooth and surrounding parts only becoming insensible to pain. Those suffering from bad teeth can now have them removed free from pain and without the effects of inhaling chloroform; ether or nitrous oxide (laughing gas).

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU gives health and vigor to the frame and bloom to the pallid cheek. Debility is accompanied by many alarming symptoms, and if no treatment is submitted to, consumption, insanity, or epileptic fits ensue

Consumption like the Rattle Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A hacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, death will be the result. Allen's Lung Balsam will heal the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter, thus stopping the cough, and preventing fatal consumption. SHATTERED CONSTITUTIONS RESTORED by Helmbold's Extract Buchu.

PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER, after a thorough trial, by innumerable living witnesses, has proved itself THE MEDICINE OF THE AGE. Although there have been many medicinal preparations brought before the public since the first introduction of Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer, and large amounts expended in their introduction, the Pain Killer has continued to steadily advance in the estimation of the world as the best Family Medicine ever introduced. It is an internal and external remedy. One positive proof of its efficacy is, that the sales have constantly increased, and wholly upon its own merits. The effect of the Pain Killer upon the patient, when taken internally in case of Cold, Cough, Bowel Complaints, Cholera, Dysentery, and other affections of the system, has been truly wonderful, and has won for it a name among medical preparations that can never be forgotten. Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy in case of Burns, Bruises, Sores, Sprains, Cuts, Stings of Insects, and other causes of suffering, has secured for it such a host of testimony, as an almost infallible remedy, that it will be handed down to posterity as one of the greatest medical discoveries of the nineteenth century,

A Mother's Gossips.

A row of little faces by the bed—
A row of little hands upon the spread—
A row of little roguish eyes all closed—
A row of little naked feet exposed

A gentle mother leads them in their praise,
Teaching their feet to tread in Heavenly ways,
And takes this half in childhood's tiny tide
The little error of the day to chide

No lovelier sight this side of Heaven is seen,
And angels hover o'er that group serene;
Instead of colors in a censor swung
There floats the fragrance of an infant's tongue.

Then tumbling headlong into waiting beds.
Beneath the sheets they hide their timid heads,
Till slumber hides away their little fears
And like a peeping bud each face appears

All dressed like angels in their gowns of white,
They're wafted to the skies in dreams of light,
And Heaven will sparkle in their eyes at morn,
And stolen graces all their ways adorn

Senator Wilson in Charleston

On the evening of May 3d, Hon. Henry Wilson of Massachusetts delivered a political address in Citadel Square, Charleston, South Carolina. It is estimated that there was an audience of five thousand persons, only a few hundred of whom were white. The platform from which he spoke was ornamented with flags and evergreens, and in front of him was the building known as the Citadel, which was used during the war as the State Military Academy. The national flag floated above its roof, and a company of colored soldiers was quartered in tents near by. Prayer was offered by a colored clergyman, and when Senator Wilson appeared upon the stand and commenced to speak, he was cheered most enthusiastically, but the cheers came almost exclusively from the blacks. He gave a history at considerable length of the events which had preceded the rebellion, and charged the responsibility of the war entirely upon the slave holders, and largely upon the South Carolinians. The following is a report of the concluding portion of his remarks:

"I do not refer to this by way of reproach; I state it to show the position which your State occupied under their lead. The faith and creed of the Revolutionary fathers was disowned, the doctrines of Washington, Jefferson and Madison were repudiated. Bold and able young men, accepting the theories of Mr. Calhoun, became the enthusiastic champions of human bondage, and drove the moderate men, the old Jackson Democrats and the Henry Clay Whigs, out of the public councils. They boldly and defiantly proclaimed in Congress their right to carry slavery into the the Territories, and maintain it there by positive law. And when we, fearing God, fearing the verdict of future ages, refused to accede to their demands, they raised the standard of revolt, and inaugurated the Rebellion. We fought for four years the men of the South. They exhausted their possessions, sent their young men to battle fields and made sacrifices which cannot but win the respect of the world. Their sons fought with heroic valor on more than six hundred battle fields; but the cause of the country, the cause of humanity, of Christian civilization, triumphed, and slavery sank into a traitor's grave to leave a traitor's name in the history of the Republic. [Applause by colored men and women.] This is a brief record of the contest of ideas from 1776 up to this hour. The fruits of your ideas and principles are now clear to the comprehension of the whole Christian and civilized world. You relieve that your ideas have perished. [You may go in yonder street and gaze on the spot where stood the hall in which your great proclamation of disunion was made, and you see dust and ashes, but you cannot even see dust and ashes where the ideas and principles and policy of the Rebellion are to-day. They are gone, glimmering among the dreams of things that were. You are further from them to-day than you were yesterday, and you will be further from them to-morrow than you are to day] [Cheers.] No action of yours, no power on God's earth, nothing but the power of Almighty God—and He will not exercise it—can bring back again the policy associated with human bondage in America. [Applause.] These men around me and about me are free to-day—as free as the Governor of South Carolina or the Mayor of Charleston. [The colored men and women cheered and waved their hats and handkerchiefs, and a negress, to illustrate her view of the status, exclaimed, "Free as de frogs,"] Mr. Wilson continued: They are not only free, but they are citizens of the great all-conquering and unconquerable Republic of united America.—[Cheers] Their rights, privileges and immunities are as sacred as those of the oldest families of South Carolina, and no power of South Carolina or out of it can bring back slavery—can deny citizenship to these black men, or place them before the law in a position of inequality. [Cheers] This is achieved. It is the will of the North American Republic. I trust you will see to it that the constitution and laws of South Carolina are made to conform to these vital, triumphing, and loving principles of liberty and right. I trust that the State of South Carolina, which led in this contest, will turn her back square on the past and face the coming future. Every word spoken, every line written, every act performed, to preserve for a moment longer anything connected or associated with human slavery, and with the policy of South Carolina in the past, is only a burden on South Carolina in the future. I say to you, men of Charleston, your cause is lost, and lost forever. Your State, which had her fortune in [illegible] and Sandtown, has become, [illegible] to her numbers, the poorest State [illegible] No State has felt the effects [illegible] more than South Carolina! You [illegible] capital here! make your fields blossom [illegible] You want farmers here; you want di[illegible] you want a new song. Living [illegible] with Carolina alongside of the [illegible] of the [illegible] spurious States of the Union. Then, [illegible] be as brave in the right as you were in the wrong. Send your able men to the public councils, commission them to speak and vote for liberty, for justice, for education. I believe I express the wish of the people of my State and section when I tell you to-day that our people do not want your lands, your blood, or any thing else you possess. They only want these poor enfranchised bondmen to be forever secured in their equal rights; they only want to see your State a great, free, prosperous Commonwealth again. Addressing himself specially to the colored people, he said: "You are now the peers and equals of every other man in the country in your rights, and I trust you will be the equals of every other man in devotion to country, in love of liberty, of justice, of education, and of industry. You have been made free. No man can now enter your cabin, and take from you the wife of your bosom or the children of your love. [Sensation, and murmurs of "No, good Lord!"] No one can separate you now. [A negress, "No, my Lord they cannot!" Another said, "That is a glorious thing"] Your rights have now been secured, and are hereafter to be secured, in the constitutions of all the States. Never vote unless you vote for your country, which made you free. [Expression of assent.] Register your names. ["We will F"] Vote for a united country. ["We will!"] Vote for the old flag. ["We will!"] Vote so to change the constitution of this State that your liberties may be consummated and made secure. ["Yes, bless the Lord!"] Cherish no hates nor prejudices growing out of your past relations. Never say, or do anything to provoke a war of races. Do not hate your late masters. No body of men since the world began has ever been punished more than they have been punished in this great contest. Their brave leaders! Where are they? Defeated; some of them are in exile, their ideas all lost, every object in their lives gone, never to come back again. As the country grows and becomes the foremost nation of the globe, their record will grow darker and darker. It is a terrible fate. God knows I would not lay any more burdens upon them. If the people of South Carolina honestly, faithfully, in the right spirit comply with the terms and conditions of reconstruction, I believe that their Senators and Representatives—if they can take the oath, and they must take it—will be admitted to Congress, and that the whole controversy will be settled. Lay down your platform of principles, invite everybody to stand upon it, give to all the right hand of fellowship, and you can carry South Carolina for the great Republican, Union, liberty-loving party of the country by twenty or thirty thousand majority. [Cheers] The freedmen of South Carolina hold in their hands the destinies of the State. They can place it abreast of the most liberal and progressive states in the country, or they can be false and recreant, and let it linger behind the age, the derision of its enemies and the pity of its friends. Will you do the first? [Shouts of "We will"] All of you in favor of doing it hold up your hands. [Thousands of dusky hands were here elevated]

Seward in Auburn—His Retirement from Public Life.

[Correspondence New York Herald]

AUBURN, N. Y., April 27.—Secretary Seward arrived here on Tuesday last, by special train from Washington. He comes to take a brief resting spell after the long and arduous duties which the lengthened session of Congress imposed upon him. His visit was unheralded, and he has been permitted to enjoy the quiet of home without any disturbance from his enthusiastic friends here, who generally take advantage of his presence to force him to the delivery of a speech.

This visit of the Secretary of State is but preliminary to his retirement from the stage of politics and public life, where during the last forty years his role has been so prominent a one. He thinks that now, in his sixty-sixth year, when verging on the threescore and ten allotted to man, he has fulfilled his part and played it to completion so far as it was in his power so to do, and that he is now entitled to withdraw from the busy scenes in which he has long been a busy actor, to accomplish the remaining portion of the journey of life in the quiet and seclusion of home.

Like many a prophet, Secretary Seward has not been awarded much faith in his own vicinity. Whatever his individual popularity may have been, his neighbors have not particularly within the last decade, reposed much trust in his political sentiments or prophecies. And yet events convinced them in many instances of their error, but failed to change their opinion of him, like the proverbial man, "convinced against his will, but of the same opinion still." Thus when the Know Nothing excitement pervaded the country in 1855, and when he was honored at his residence with a delegation from that party, who favored him with a serenade, in which utensils of a domestic character contributed to the greater portion of the music (such was the antipathy that his opposition to the movement aroused about his very ears,) he predicted the downfall of so unrepublican a party with a truthfulness that was often afterward quoted in proof of his foresight. In one of those little conversations at his residence, to which I have referred as among the cherished pleasures of his private life, he predicted, or rather remarked, with an air of conviction, that, as civil war had ever been attended with assassinations of prominent men, it would not surprise him if during the war attempts would be made upon the life of the President, or himself, or some other officer of the government. Again he received credit for his perspicacity, but yet failed to convince his radical neighbors that they were wrong in their views. The last election went radical by a majority of two hundred votes larger than that preceding, although the Secretary of State had taken the stump, and used his oratorical efforts against that party.

Mr. Seward will retire to private life not with out regret that, despite the toil and labor of forty years, he failed to achieve the darling project of his political career. He will in the seclusion of his home still feel the pangs of disappointed ambition. The founder of the Republican party and its apostle in its earlier days, he aimed at the Chief Magistracy with the belief that it was but a tribute to his efforts and ability. He would have been the candidate of the party in 1856 had he not taken the advice of his bosom and cherished friend Thurlow Weed, who counseled him to wait another term, as the probability of an election by the party in that canvass was very uncertain. He abided by this advice, but has bitterly repented it, as he has since learned that with the Philadelphia Convention passed away his last chance for the Presidency. As he himself said, had he but consented to take the nomination then, even if defeated he would have again entered the lists in 1860. But, no. Like a general (I quote his own simile) who dared not enter the battle with his troops in a doubtful engagement, he permitted himself to be withdrawn from the contest where, whatever the result, he should have been still the leader of his party. Even his defeat, then would have insured his success later.

A lingering hope still held forth its promises of a choice in 1860, although his convictions were to the contrary. When that, too, was dissipated, he decided on retiring to private life. He knew that his opportunity was gone forever. The party which he nourished into being had passed by him. Credit must be given him for this much consistency. He could not dissemble his real sentiments to his party and truckle to it for a nomination. The nomination was his of right. As to remaining in public life there was no station he would accept. When the Chevalier Webb called on him to invite him to form a part of President Lincoln's Cabinet, he repelled the offer. How could he be a subordinate who had always been responsible to himself or the people? He would fill no position where he was not so responsible. The importunities of Mr. Lincoln's friends, however, at length prevailed. The proposal to take the portfolio of Secretary of State was made to him in August, before the election had taken place, but Mr. Lincoln's success was not for a moment doubted. From that month until the following December he pondered the subject deeply, intensely, until in the latter part of January he decided to forego his determination to retire from public life, and consented to the proposal to enter Mr Lincoln's Cabinet. Since then his history is too familiar to need reciting.

His preparations for the enjoyment of a serene old age, in the quiet shades of his beloved Auburn—a town in its beauty strikingly suggestive of its poetic namesake—are duly progressing. The old mansion which has so long been his residence has been enlarged to twice its extent. Its reception and dining rooms have been correspondingly altered, with a view to the better entertainment, during the days of his retirement, of the hosts of friends who will flock as of old to his gatherings. The Seward mansion is in the old fashioned style, surrounded by trees, with a row of venerable poplars at the portal. A dense grove at the side, which Aristotle might have envied for his academicians, was, and doubtless will be still, a favorite resort of Mr. Seward. Throughout life a most laborious student, he frequented its shady walks when pondering the thoughts and problems which his vast reading opened up to him. The green waves and golden perch of the Owasco will still have their delights for him, for the Secretary is a strict disciple of Ike Walton. And though a tinge of melancholy will not fail to pervade his pleasures and pursuits, the companionship of friends, his philosophic resignation to his fate, and the delights of home, will make him forget the ingratitude of politicians and the blighted hopes of his former ambition.

Personally, Mr. Seward is looking unusually well, though rather careworn after the anxieties of the protracted session of Congress. His friends say that he has not appeared to enjoy as good health in several years. The scar on his left cheek is still plainly visible, though perfectly healed. The flesh severed by the assassin's knife still hangs heavily below the jaw, but the muscles are re knitting steadily though slowly, and his physicians predict a remote restoration of the features to their natural condition.

In private circles he is very enthusiastic over his recent achievement, in securing for Uncle Sam the Russian American Territory, whose possession he deems a crowning triumph of his diplomatic career, the benefits of which, though now involved in obscurity, will, he claims, become of incalculable value at a not very remote period.

Mormonism in Iowa.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Journal]

A recent decision of the Supreme Court of this State developes a state of affairs which it would be difficult for one to believe were true in this the nineteenth century, and among a people so proverbially intelligent as the Hawkeyes. The case was brought before the court by appeal from the Monona District; the question involved being that of trusts—how established, etc. The suit was brought by Samuel Scott et al, against Charles B. Thompson et al., to recover certain property which the latter had "hornswoggled" from the former. Although there is but very little of law in the case, I cannot forbear to copy it for the benefit of those who desire to see what fools people can make of themselves. The amount of land in controversy was about three thousand acres.

The evidence shows that Charles B Thompson was a Mormon preacher, that he assumed to have revelations direct from heaven.

In 1853, Thompson, followed by some of the plaintiffs, went to Monona county and founded the town of Preparation. The land was entered by them severally, and afterward conveyed to Thompson in pursuance of the law of sacrifices. He organized a society which he called "Jehovah's Presbytery of Zion." Soon thereafter, as he avers, "the word of the Lord" came to him, and pursuant thereto he established "schools of faith" and "schools of works," on entering which it was revealed that certain covenants should be taken, of which the following is a sample:

"In consideration of the instruction received in the schools of Jehovah's Presbytery of Zion, I now give, bequeath and consecrate and promise to pay to Charles B Thompson, Chief Steward of the House of Jehovah, and Chief Teacher of the Order of Elias the Prophet, in Jehovah Presbytery of Zion, for the service thereof, the value of one tenth of my real and personal estate, including cash on hand, and money due and one tenth of my time and services * * * And I solemnly covenant never to require any remuneration for the same other than the instruction."

Thompson held out to his followers that he had special revelations requiring tithings, gift oblations and sacrifices to be made to him. One of these revelations was as follows:

"And now behold, I appoint unto you my servant Charles B. Thompson, whom I have made Chief Steward of my house; for behold, I have prized him as I did Abraham of old, and he kept my covenant. * * And behold he is the first born of my kingdom in these last days therefore have I made him Chief Steward of my houses, and have qualified and appointed him to receive, hold, manage, and direct all the sacred treasures of my house—the oblations, gifts, tithings, and sacrifices of my people."

In 1854, there was revealed to him the law of sacrifices. "The Word of the Lord, by the voice Burneney, coming into Charles B. Thompson, Chief Steward of the Lord's House," and requiring the sacrifice from the members of all their earthly possessions unto Thompson, for the use of "Jehovah's Presbytery of Zion," to "enrich the treasures of the Lord." The members were required to, and did enter into formal bonds, binding themselves and children "to labor faithfully for and under the protection of Charles B Thompson, for two years," he agreeing to furnish board, lodging and clothing. He required them to execute, and they did execute bills of sale of all their personal and deeds of all their real property, to him—all this, as he being thought, commanded of them by the law of sacrifice, which had been specially revealed to him.

When the sacrifice was made small portions of the property, such as clothes to cover their naked ness, tools, etc, were redelivered Thompson taking notes for the value, and teaching that the sacrifice would be deemed complete when the notes were paid.

In 1855, Thompson incorporated what was styled the "House of Ephram," issued shares of stock representing the property of the corporation, all or most of which was assigned to him.

In 1858, Thompson refusing to divide the property, or settle with the members of the society and insisting upon retaining property, a difficulty arose and he was compelled to flee for safety from the anger of his people. He has not since returned.

After this difficulty he conveyed to one Barnum (an "Assistant Steward in the Lord's House," (to his wife and to his brother, the lands claimed by the plaintiffs to belong to the Society of the Presbytery of Zion.

After a full hearing of the case, the District Court decreed as follows:

"That Charles B. Thompson was trustee for for the members of the society called 'Jehovah's Presbytery of Zion,' established at Preparation that he hold all the property, real and personal, coming into his possession as teacher, leader, and agent of said society, whether by gift, sacrifice, or purchase, as trustee, for the use and benefit of the members of the society; that the deed to Barnum was illegal and a fraud upon the members of the society, and should be cancelled; and that the deeds to his wife and brother were also fraudulent and should be cancelled.

"The Court also decreed that the trust estate should be closed, and that each of the plaintiffs, and each of the defendants who were members of the society, should receive his or her share or portion thereof, in proportion to the amount contributed by each in money, property and labor, and to this end it was ordered that the cause be referred to a referee, who is instructed how to proceed, and upon what principles he should adjust the rights of the members. A receiver was also appointed."

In the Supreme Court the opinion of the Court below was affirmed, and the cause remanded in order that the trust may be closed, and the property divided if the parties desire it, Justice Dillon writing the opinion.

The Star Chamber.

It has been a common error to date the Star Chamber from the third year of Henry VII. Even Lord Andover, who, in 1640, had charge of the Bill which passed into "An Act for Regulating the Privy Council, and for taking away the court commonly called the Court of the Star Chamber," erroneously referred to 3 Henry VII., c 1, as the statue which had first founded the court. "This" he says, "was the infancy of the Star Chamber But afterwards the Star Chamber was, by Cardinal Woolsey, in the 8 Henry VIII., raised to man's estate, from whence (being now altogether unlimited) it is grown a monster." The truth is, the statute of Henry VII. was the first statute that recognized the existence of the Star Chamber, and conferred upon it judicial power, but the court or council, or both in one, existed long before Henry's reign. If we go the length that Hudson does, we shall have to believe what he certainly suggests, that the Star Chamber was "the council" referred to when a man was told that he stood "in danger of the council" for saying to his brother "Raca." But without carrying the matter quite so far back it will be found that in Edward the First's time distinct mention is made of the Star Chamber (which appears to have exercised the mixed functions of a judicial and governmental) council. At this time it was composed of the chancellor, the treasurer, the justices of either bench, the exchequers, scargents, some of the principal clerks in the chancery, "and such others—usually, but not exclusively, bishops, earls, and barons—as the king thought fit to name." Palgrave says: "On certain occasions it appears that the official members sat and acted alone, but on others they were united to the rest." This council is the same body which is alluded to in very many statutes subsequently to Edward I. as that before which offenders in certain cases are ordered to appear and by some of which authority is given to the "King's Council" to do certain things. Hudson says, when ridiculing the notion that his favorite court was established by the statute of Henry VII., that it is "a dealing which no man that hath looked upon the records of the court would have lighted upon." In order rightly to understand the constitution of the court, and to trace the source whence it derived its authority, it should be remembered that there were three councils known in practice, at least, to the English law—the Commune Concilium, the Magnum Concilium, and the Privatum Concilium. Of these three, the first was the general assembly of the military tenants of the Crown, answering to the House of Lords of to-day; the second was that large committee of the first to which the king looked for advice in his government, and to which he referred petitions and complaints made to himself, the third was a select committee of the second council, supplemented by certain judges and sergeants, who sat as assessors. To this select committee were sent, in the course of time, not only as between subject and subject, which had been committed by petition to the king, or his Magnum Concilium, but also all complaints—and they seem to have been pretty numerous—of misconduct and injustice on the part of the royal officers. If the second council may be said to have borne to the first the same relation that the Privy Council now bears to the House of Lords, the third council may be said to have borne to the second a relation somewhat similar to that which the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council now bears to the council itself.—Intellectual Observer.

An Appropriative Article from One of the Southern Brethren.

[From the Memphis Public Ledger, April 23d]

The feeble attempts made in the North to supply the starving people of the South with food have generally failed. Of course they failed, and will continue to fail, though half our people should die with famine. In the city of New York, the center of finance and commerce, and the metropolis of the continent, only a pittance has been contributed. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars is less than a pittance there. Astor and Vanderbilt, and others, count their wealth by millions Stewart alone, might, if so disposed, rescue whole counties from starvation. But we have not heard that he has contributed a single cent. In the aggregate, the wealth of New York is almost too great to be counted. The South has given the greater portion of it, and daily pours to that point her vast streams of trade. We have bought everything there—we still buy there, but what is the return? The New Yorkers have paid to "Black Crook" alone, money enough to rescue from famine one of the States of the South. History returns to Europe with $300,000 of American gold. Everything for the "Black Crook" and History, but nothing for the thousands at home who are dying from hunger. That is the motto of the North.

An attempt was made in Chicago to raise a famine fund, but it failed. One devil in the shape of a man expressed a willingness to send, in lieu of bread, arsenic to the South. The clergy made an experiment, but Chicago was true to herself Arsenic might be sent down, but no bacon and flour. Some good intentioned persons in the metropolis of swine made a desperate attempt to send a few barrels of pork to the scene of rapine and famine, but it was soon given over. Cincinnati, greasy from center to suburb, and odorous all over with the smell of pork, had not a cent of money, a joint of meat or a pound of flour to give Ah, but there was one thing it did give—it gave a Radical majority of five thousand. And so that city, that grows rich on Southern trade, has nothing to give the South—nothing but that which confiscation shall leave and rapine overlook.

In every Northern city every effort to relieve the South have failed. Heaven, as if in accord with the earth, sent its floods to swoop away what little had been given. It is all right, no doubt. It may be all right for the millionaire to laugh at a race of skeletons. We may have the history of Lazarus and the rich man repeated—perhaps with the difference that there are no dogs kind enough to lick the ulcers of the South. The rich man spurned the wretched Lazarus from his gates. He died, and as his mortal sight closed on earth, the scene of his revelries, his immortal vision opened on the plains of a burning limitless hell. Lazarus went straight to Abraham's bosom. But the rich man did not do that which will forever be the shame of Chicago—offer arsenic to a beggar. Scripture has not defined the crime of that city. Inspiration itself seems to have been ignorant of the last degree of human depravity. The angels have now something new to weep for Christ, in his expiring agony on the cross, excused his murderers on the ground that they knew not what they did. Chicago, Cincinnati and the North are without the excuse of the murderers of the Saviour—they know what they do.

The present Duke of Wellington three years ago had an income of $750,000. By steady exertion he has reduced it to $7,500.
